In the face of looming disaster, Pollen, an interstellar traveler from the far reaches of space, is dispatched to Earth in order to warn mankind of the potentially tragic ramifications of its eco-unfriendly behavior. His mission is clear: to convince humans that they must learn to live in harmony with nature in order to reverse the ongoing havoc that they continue to wreak on the environment. Accompanying Pollen on his quest is a mysterious living ring with powers unimaginable - and therein lies the rub: certain influential members of the very race he was sent to save soon plot to steal the ring and use it for their own self-serving gain, thereby defeating the purpose of Pollen's rescue mission. So, the noble "Green Messiah" ultimately finds himself in a race against time to spare the lives of those hell-bent on their own destruction...
